INTERVIEW FACTS FOR KIDS

KIDS ENCYCLOPEDIA FACTS

An interview is a special kind of conversation where one person asks questions and another person gives answers.

Usually, one person is the interviewer (the one asking questions) and the other is the interviewee (the one answering).

During an interview, the interviewer asks questions, and the interviewee shares information or their thoughts. Interviews happen in many different places and for many reasons. Here are some common examples:

1. When people want a job, they go to a job interview. This is a formal meeting where you talk to someone from a company.
2. Doctors and therapists also use interviews. In a psychiatric interview, they ask questions to understand how someone feels or thinks.
3. Researchers use interviews to learn people's opinions and ideas. This is called qualitative research.
4. Reporters often do interviews for the news. They talk to people to get information for news stories.
